"At 11.15 we commanded an extensive prospect of Lachlan Plains. Deception Range with the tremendous Frenchman lay before us. At 11.43 we reached a very peculiar bold solitary and picturesque rock with a front overhanging on its eastern side affording thereby secure and comfortable shelter from the prevailing westerly gales. From the circumstance of Mr. C's party having camped under (it) 25th Dec. 1840 it has since borne the designation Christmas H.

Clark River,
"there is a correction which must be noted. In the Kell Basin chart a river is shown as flowing in a southerly direction between Mts. Darwin and Sorell and is there called the Clark River. This river is not charted as entering Macquarie Harbour but there is a river named Fysh River which is shown flowing into Kelly Basin through the township reserve of Pillinger....these two streams are one and the same and the so-called Fysh River is more to the west.
The writer therefore assumes the responsibility of combining the two streams under the one name Clark River. (L.Hills)

according to Scottish Dictionary, State Library
"Coble" means to float undulatingly as a boyant object on wavelets.

A stepping stone is said to be "Coble" when it moves under one who steps on it.

Cause to rock, another mean "Dinna coble the pleht or ye'll spill the milk."

COBLE - a small boat being easily rocked.

a small flatbottomed rowing boat used mostly in river or lake fishing or ne-ting near the coast.

The English Coble...has a rudder extending 4 or 5 fee below the bottom, three pairs of o and used only for sea-fishing.

Colin's Bonnet or Cap,
the northern peak of Mount Wellington overlooking Bismarck (now Collinsvale) was named by Governor Collins.
The intention was to indicat that the peak reminded one of a Scotchman's bonnet

L.Norman's papers

Colin's-Cap-
Colin's Bonnet
spelt this way on early maps but since 1900 approx. two l's have been wrongly put in by mapmakers

Cairns, mounts or forts, military structures and round towers, one on Colin mountair near Lisburn, one on Slieve True near Carrickfergus and two on Colinward in County Antrim, Ireland. Ency.Brit.

named in the very early days of Governor Collins.
By some the designation is regarded as a corruption of the latter name
